Your right to publish your work

Rights granted to the ICR Publications Repository through this agreement are non-exclusive. You are free to publish the Work in its present or future version(s) elsewhere and no ownership is assumed by the Repository when storing the e-print.

Depositing with ICR Publications Repository

By agreeing to this licence, you (the author(s), copyright owner or assignee), grant a non exclusive licence to ICR Publications Repository that authorises the following:

a) You are the author, copyright holder or assignee and have authority to make this agreement, and give ICR Publications Repository the right to publish the Work in a repository.

b) That the Work is original and does not, to the best of your knowledge infringe upon anyone’s copyright.

(cont.)
Permissions given to the Repository

The ICR Publications Repository shall distribute electronic copies of the work for the lifetime of the Repository, or based upon an agreed time span, and translate it as necessary to ensure it can be read by computer systems in the future. No charge will be made for distribution, except for media costs necessary for postal distribution.

Withdrawing your work

You may request the Work is removed at any point in the future. Equally, the Repository reserve the right to remove the Work for any professional, administrative or legal reason. A metadata record indicating the Work was stored in the Repository will remain visible in perpetuity.

Disclaimer

While every care will be taken to preserve the e-print, the ICR Publications Repository is not liable for loss or damage to the e-print or other data while it is stored within the repository.

Definition & terms

In this licence document:

- ‘Work’: means the e-print being deposited including abstract, text, images and related data.
- ‘E-print’: means an academic research paper stored in an electronic format.